DETAILED ACTION

1. Receipt of the papers filed on February 4, 2005, is acknowledged. In response to the requirement for restriction, claims 1-57 and 65-71 have been canceled. Claims 58-64 are pending.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 58, 59, 62, 63 and 64 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Washizu et al (6,875,329).

4. The Washizu et al patent is directed to a method separating substances using dielectrophoretic apparatus. The method is useful for substances ranging in size from 100 nm to 100 um (column 11, lines 11-13). The method can be used for liquids in which two or more kinds of substances are dissolved or suspended (column 4, lines 52-57). The mixture is exposed to a plurality of electrodes which form an asymmetrical electric field. See, for example, figure 14. The electric field would polarize the materials to cause differential migration and separation.

5. With respect to claim 62, the material may be dissolved or suspended in water (column 12, lines 48-49). With respect to claims 63 and 64, the frequency of the electric field may be varied (column 8, line 63 to column 9, line5).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

8. Claims 60 and 61 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Washizu et al (6,875,329) combined with Smalley et al (2004/0038251 A1).

9. Claims 60 and 61 differ from the process of Washizu et al by reciting that the material to be separated includes metallic or conductive carbon nanotubes and semiconducting carbon nanotubes. The Smalley patent is directed to single-wall carbon nanotubes. Smalley et al teach that it is desirable to separate the metallic type nanotubes from the semiconducting nanotubes (paragraph 0085).

10. The prior art of record is indicative of the level of skill of one of ordinary skill in the art. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to have utilized the dielectrophoretic separation technique of Washizu et al to have separated metallic from semiconducting nanotubes because it is desirable to separate these materials as taught by Smalley et al and the dielectrophoretic technique of Washizu et al is effective in separating nanosize materials.
